PARISH MINISTRIES

We welcome you to visit our parish website for a listing and more information on all our ministries.

PASTOR'S CORNER

Preparing for the Sunday Mass

As good stewards of the gift of faith in the family, we need to take a moment to listen to or read the readings for the upcoming Sunday. Each family needs to at least have a Sunday Missalette that has the Sunday Readings or access to the following resources.

Our weekly bulletin, page 2, contains the current Sunday's Homily on the top half and commentary on the readings for the following Sunday on the bottom half of that page. Our parish website (www.stjohnmililani.org) features the current Sunday homily as well as my audio Podcast on the right hand column of the homepage. If you have a smart phone, you can access more resources on the "myParish" app. Parish updates are available as early as Thursday evening each week. The same services are available on our parish Facebook page (www.facebook.com/john.apostle.718).

In addition, the United States Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB) web site (www.usccb.org/bible/readings/) provides daily readings that you can browse in advance. There are other online ministry sites that provide reflections, weekly guides, and special seasonal aides that assist you in understanding what is going on in the Holy Mass and a better understanding of the Liturgical Year.

Be passionate about your faith! Be curious and search for answers! Studying is a good sign of a dynamic Catholic. Gradually, you will grow into the rhythm and context of the Liturgical Year. You won't want to miss what is coming up in the weeks ahead. The more we fully participate in the liturgy, the more our lives transform. If the Sunday Holy Mass is important, it is necessary to have a preparation plan as a family or as an individual. You need to plan on arriving on time.

We will next consider how Arriving On Time helps your full participation.

Jubilee Year of Mercy: December 8, 2015 - November 20, 2016
"Merciful like the Father"

ELEVENTH SUNDAY OF THE ORDINARY TIME - YEAR C

Today's gospel depicts two very different ways of relating to Jesus. Simon the Pharisee related to Jesus as a onetime visitor, maintaining only a surface relationship having no power to transform him. He kept Jesus at a safe distance for him. His response of indignation indicated how distant he really was from a life-changing relationship with Jesus. The "sinful woman," on the contrary, openly admits her sinfulness by her actions when she encountered Jesus. She relates to him in an intimate way, affirming the underlying relationship that transformed her. Jesus was indeed a prophet, for he was able to see into this woman's heart and forgive her. He also looked into the heart of the Pharisee, saw in him a lack of love and how distant he was, without the desire to change.

The woman came to express and manifest her gratitude for having been forgiven. She did this through the gestures that her affection and womanly sensibility suggested. From the moment she had experienced forgiveness, she had begun her new life founded on love, for she loved much. Since she had met Jesus, all changed in her: his word worked the miracle. Jesus revealed the depth of her transformation when he said: "Your faith has saved you." What is our relationship with Jesus now? What does he say to you?

Both Jesus and Simon the Pharisee saw the sinful woman. Jesus was the first one to have looked at her without lust and had raised in her the wish to stop being a pleasure toy for others and had given her hope to become a person in her own right. She realized that God was close to her, offering his peace, and that he had forgiven her. The Pharisee neglected to see Jesus' need for hospitality and the sinful woman's need for forgiveness and salvation. It is so easy to miss seeing the needs of others! Part of that seeing is to forget self so that we can truly encounter the other. If we are wrapped up in our own needs, it is impossible to see the needs of others. One way to live this gospel is to practice every day reaching out to another with a simple gesture of kindness or hospitality. This can be as simple as saying hello to someone we pass in a pathway, smiling at someone who seems depressed, or lending a helping hand to someone who seems burdened.

The story of David offers us some crucial lessons. First, we should be alert that temptation is all around, and we can easily succumb to it. Second, it tells us how, once we have fallen, we can go to great lengths to cover up sin. But that strategy often leads to more and more sin. Once one acknowledges sin like David, God is merciful to everyone who comes to him! So whether your sin is large or small, never be afraid to confess it for God's merciful love is limitless. The "sinful woman's" tears were triggered by her great sense of unworthiness and her profound repentance. Through her tears she expresses deep sorrow for sin and at the same time expresses her gratitude of being forgiven by anointing the feet of Jesus. Her gestures of touching him were ones of connectedness, of closing the distance between alienation and communion, of desiring a new relationship with someone who cares and heals. Let us expose ourselves to Jesus' healing touch, and transforming, saving Presence.

READINGS FOR NEXT SUNDAY, JUNE 19, 2016

First Reading: Zechariah 12:10-11; 13:1

These three verses contain a prophetic revelation from the Lord who is actually the speaker. The revelation concerns judgement and lament as well as of hope and salvation. By the grace of God, the Davidic monarchy and the people of Jerusalem have finally recognized their guilt. They are responsible for the harm done to an unnamed man whom they "pierced". The description shows that the man died as a result of those wounds and the offenders mourn for their guilt.

Responsorial Psalm: Psalm 63:2,3-4,5,6,8-9

Psalm 63 is a hymn of confidence. It begins with expressions of longing, followed by a short hymn of praise, and concludes with words of confidence. The response expresses that longing, "My soul is thirsting for you, O Lord, my God."

Second Reading: Galatians 3:26-29

In this short passage, Paul sums up the relationship existing between all those baptized into Christ. The context to understand this passage is the Israelite concept of the Children of God. The Jews took great pride in claiming, through Abraham, that they were God's chosen children. In addition, physical descent from this ancestor entitled one as a child of God, but now Paul argues that it is faith in Christ that determines the right of inheritance and not physical descent from Abraham. He, therefore, insists that through baptism the Galatians have entered into a new form of life in Christ.

Gospel Reading: Luke 9:18-24

This Gospel passage consists of Peter's confession and the prediction, by Jesus, of his passion, death and resurrection. Knowing the person of Jesus is pivotal. Jesus first asks who the people think he is, which is easy to say. At the time of Jesus, there were many messianic traditions (characteristics of identifying the Messiah). Among these were royal (son of David), priestly, and apocalyptic (Son of Man). The people seemed to have thought that Jesus was a prophet. Then Jesus asks the tough question, "Who do you say that I am?" Peter speaks on behalf of the rest replying, "You are the Christ of God", which means the anointed one, the Messiah. In other words, Peter's confession declares Jesus to be the long-awaited One. Since they know who he is now, Jesus teaches his followers on the implications of discipleship: being like him, denying themselves of self-interest and self-fulfilment, taking up one's cross and walking along with him on the way of the Cross.
